

Ethical vs Legal Boundaries Debate

Team A – Ethics Should Come First

↻ JAHNAVISAISATYA K Jul 21, 2026 09:22am

Instructions

Argue that ethical principles should be followed even when laws may not fully address a situation.

Examples:

- Whistleblowing
- Human rights
- Fairness
- Privacy

Ethics means doing the right thing, even when no one is watching

2

Nithin Varma Jul 23, 2026 05:05am

Not everyone shares the same ethics, but everyone must follow the same laws."

Tharun Venkat Jul 23, 2026 05:06am

Doing the right thing is purely subjective without written law, everyone defines right differently, leading to total chaos.

↻ MAHATHI - 192472221 Jul 23, 2026 04:57am

ethics defines that should follow moral principles

Ethics guide our values, but laws ensure everyone follows the same rules fairly and equally.

↻ KANISGHAYAZHINI.C(192471011) Jul 23, 2026 04:58am

Laws are often created based on ethical principles. Without ethics, laws would have no moral foundation.

3

Dune Pathfinder Jul 23, 2026 05:05am

yes many laws are inspired by ethics but once a law is enacted, it becomes legally binding on everyone. ethics are personal but laws are universal and enforceable

Tharun Venkat Jul 23, 2026 05:07am

Ethical ideas remain useless theories until written laws establish clear, binding, and equal rules for all of society.

kanisghayazhini.C(192471011) Jul 23, 2026 05:08am

I agree that laws are enforceable, but ethics isn't just personal opinion. Core ethical values like honesty, fairness, and respect are shared across societies and are the reason good laws exist in the first place

↻ B NIKITHA Jul 23, 2026 05:00am

Laws can never cover every situation, but our values and conscience guide us.

1

Gurram Roshitha Jul 23, 2026 05:01am

that's why laws can be updated, but personal values differ from person to person. laws provide one standard that everyone must follow.

Question for law team

If following the law alone is enough, why do organizations still require a Code of Ethics for ethical hackers?

👍 (1) 🙌 (1) 😊 (1) 😊 (1) 🗨 5

Shakthi Jul 23, 2026 05:12am ethics guide behaviour ;laws enforce it,without legal enforcement,a code os thics is only a recommendation

Gurram Roshitha Jul 23, 2026 05:13am

The code of ethics complements the law it doesn't replace it. without the law, there would be no legal authority to define or punish cybercrime.

RAVI TEJA YV Jul 23, 2026 05:14am

The Code of Ethics supports the law; it does not replace it. Law comes first. 😊

Ragul(192524066) Jul 23, 2026 05:14am

Law catches the wrongdoer after the damage. Ethics stops the damage before it happens. Prevention is always better than punishment

Ragul(192524066) Jul 23, 2026 05:16am

Law defines the minimum standard. Ethics inspires the highest standard
